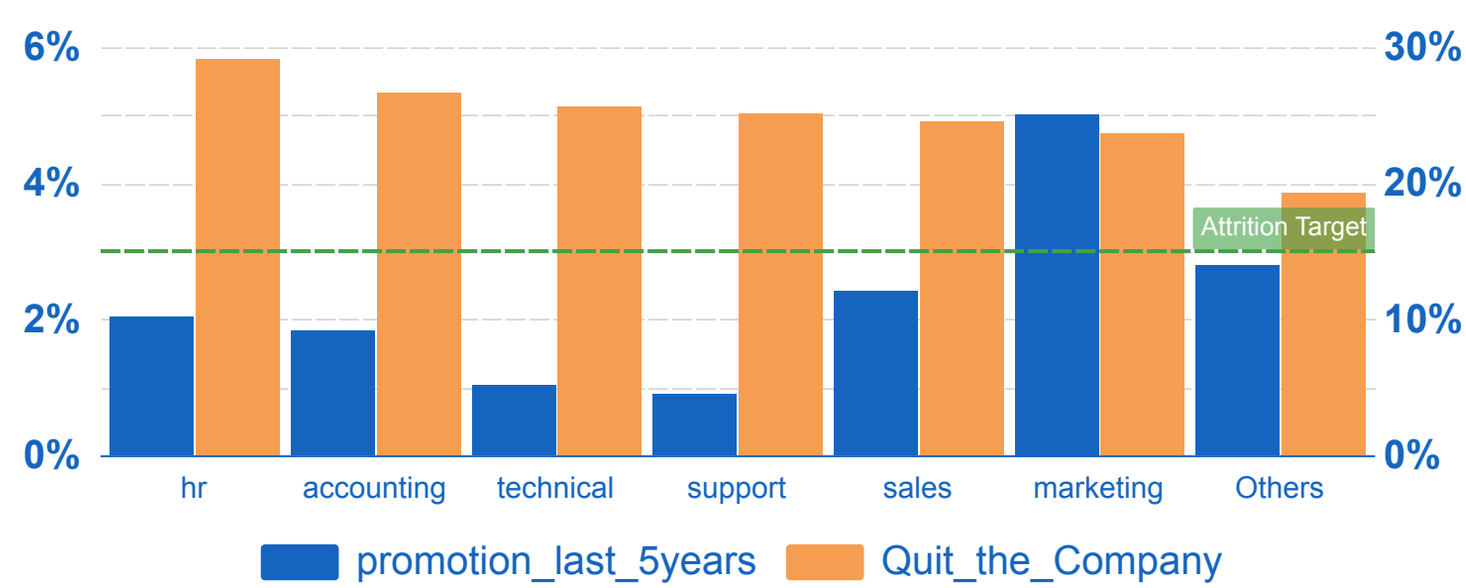
Executive Overview

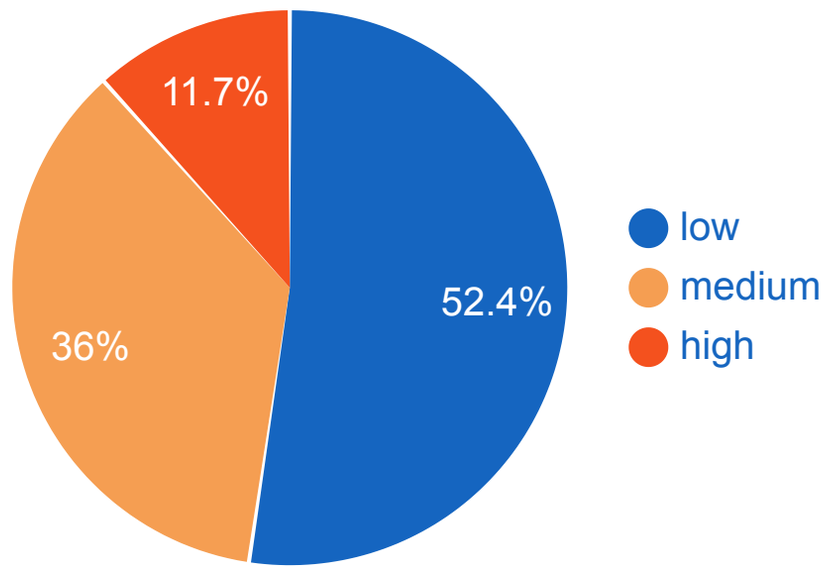
Departments

Total Employees	Attrition Rate	Avg. Satisfaction	Avg. Monthly Hour	Avg. Evaluation
15,004	24%	0.61	201	72%

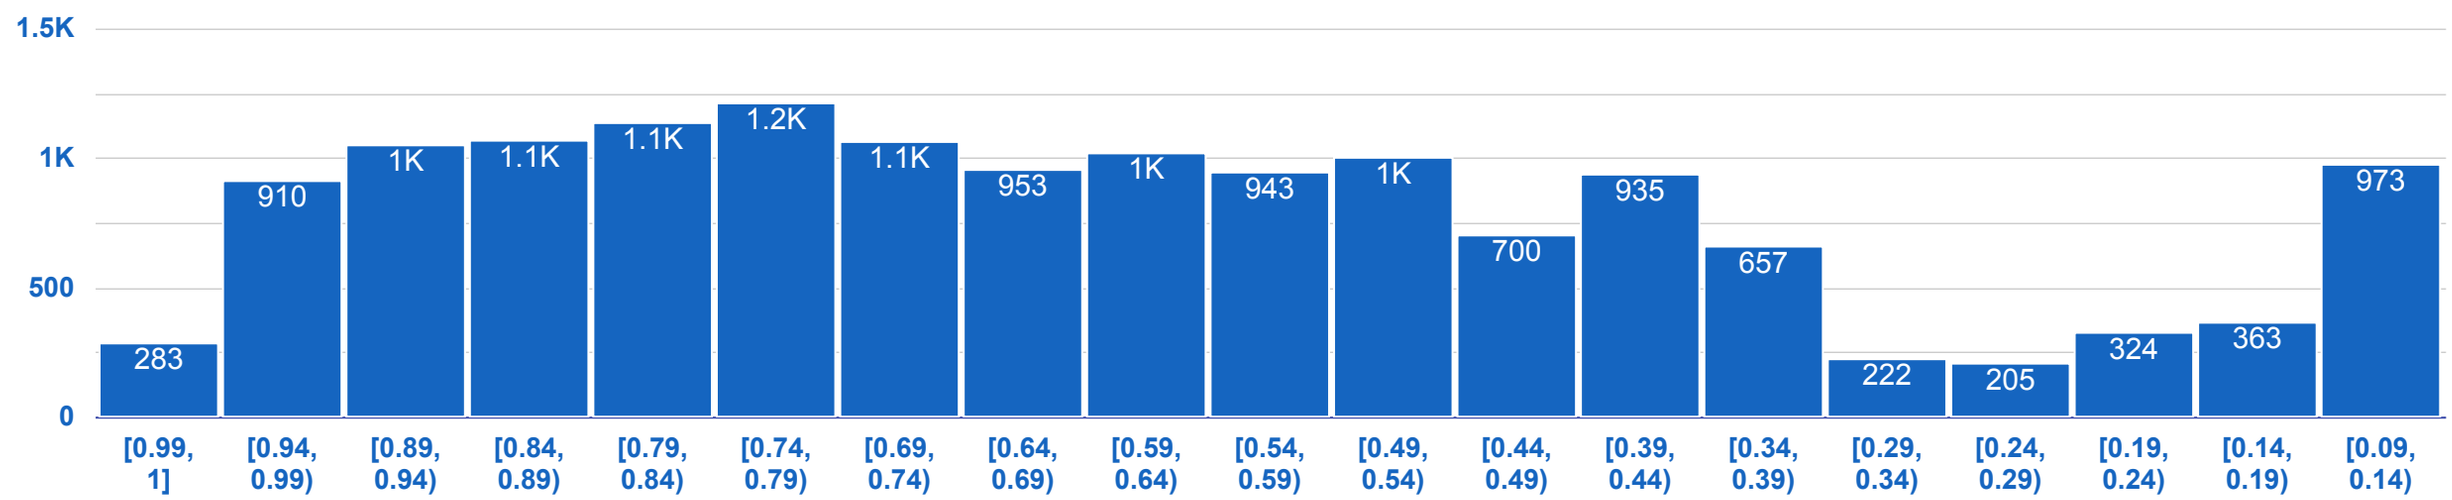
Attrition by Department



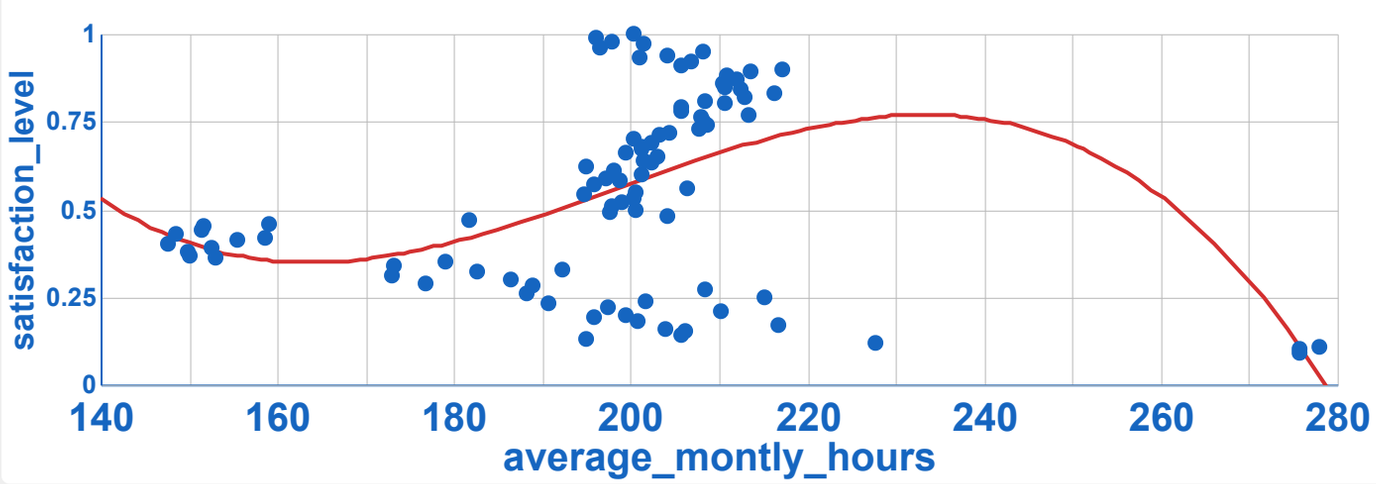
Attrition by Salary Level



Satisfaction Score Distribution



Satisfaction vs. Monthly Hours



Key Insights

1- Top performers quit almost as often as bottom performers. (~33% vs ~36%)

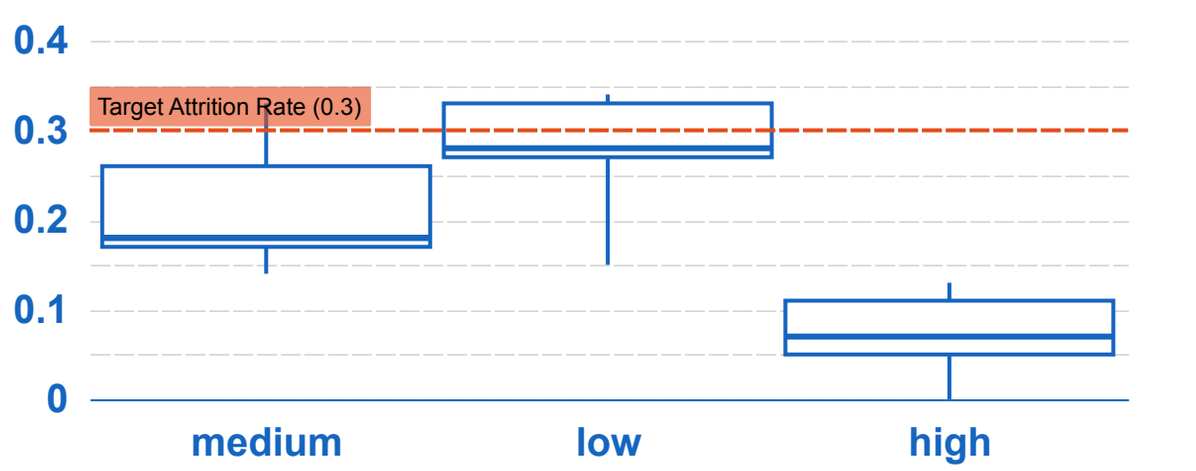
2- 7% of new employees are predicted to leave, mostly from management and technical departments.

Promotion Analysis

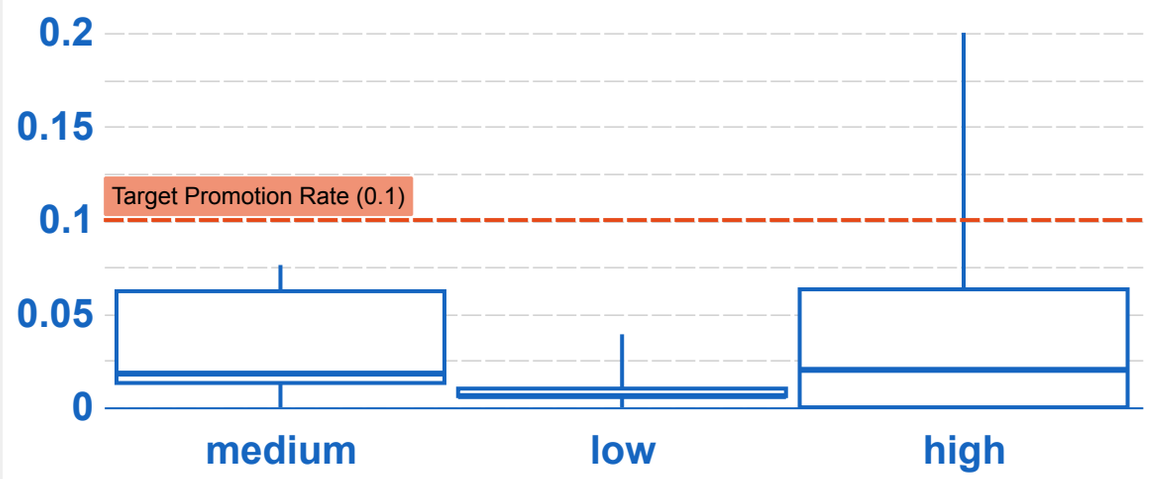
Departments

Low Salary Share	Promotion Rate	Attrition Rate	Attrition Rate, Promoted
49%	2%	24%	6%

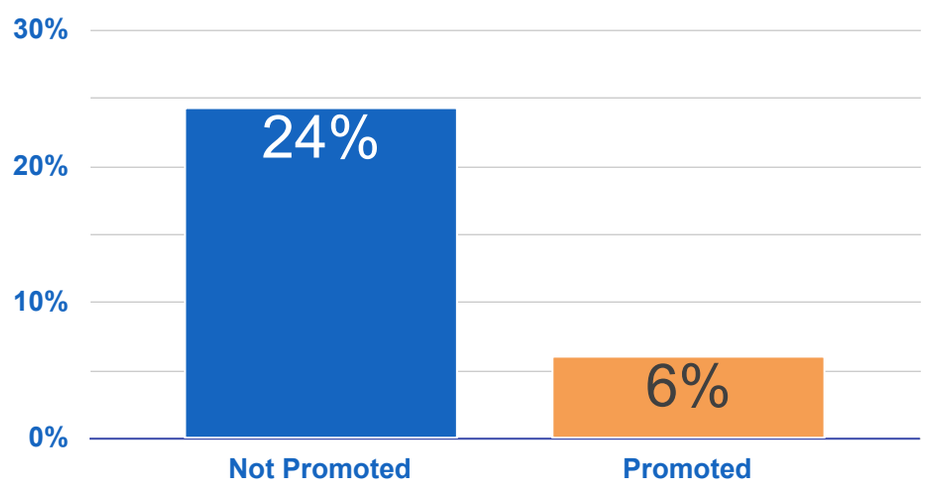
Attrition Rate by Salary Level



Promotion Rate by Salary Level



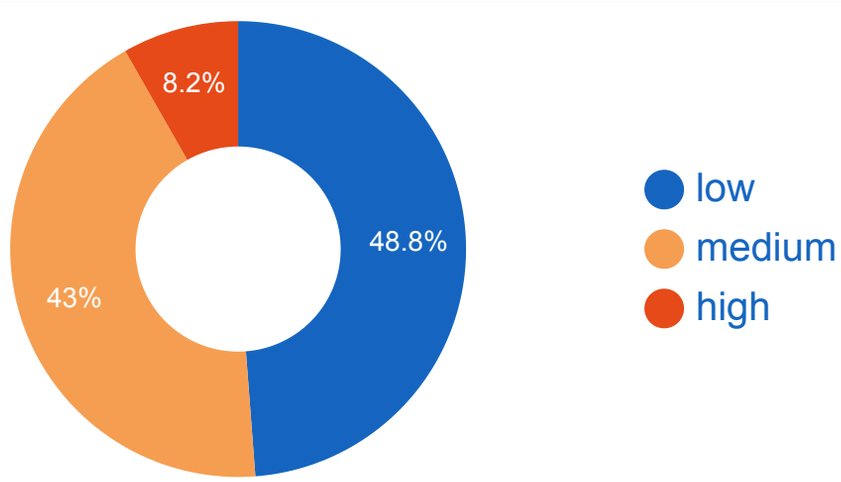
Attrition Rate by Promotion Status



Attrition Rate by Salary and Promotion Status

salary	Promotion Status / Quit_the_Company: Not Promoted	Promoted
low	29.8%	21.2%
medium	20.9%	2.8%
high	7.0%	0.0%

Employee Composition by Salary Level



Key Compensation Insights

1- Low-salaried employees show the highest attrition concentration

2- Employees without promotion history leave more often thna promoted employees

3- The highest-risk compensation segment is low-salary + not promoted

Workload & Satisfaction Analysis

Departments

Avg. Monthly Hours
201

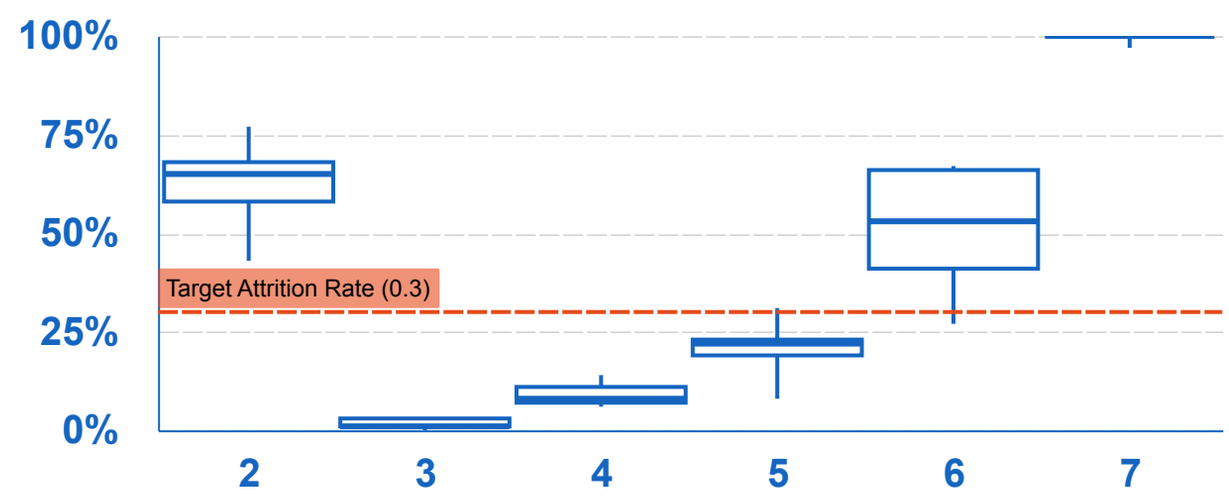
Low Satisfaction Attrition Rate
54%

Avg. Number of Projects
4

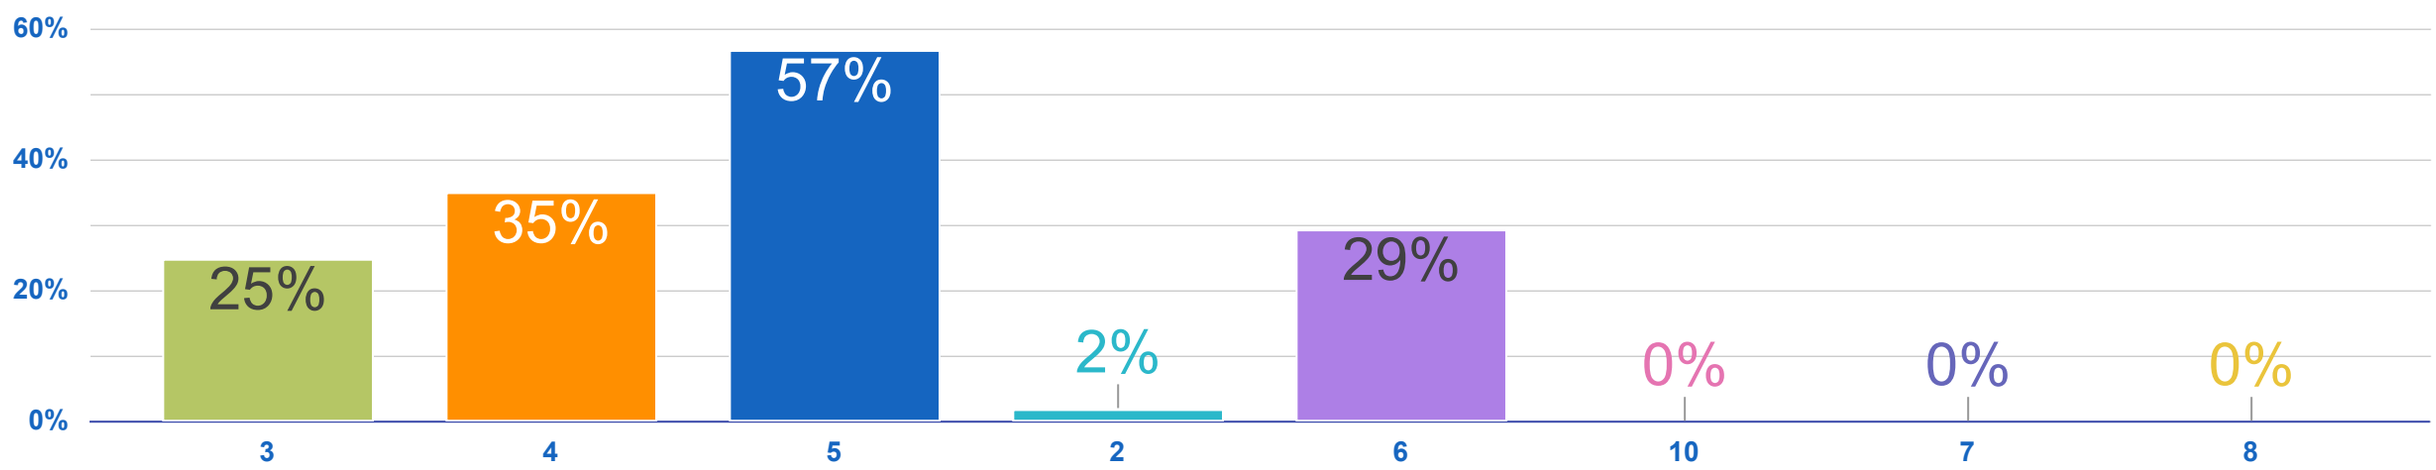
Attrition Rate by Salary Level

Satisfaction Status	<170	>220	170-220
	Workload Status / Quit_the_Company
<40%	56.1%	68.38%	5.98%
40%-70%	39.79%	3.68%	1.95%
>70%	1.48%	29.26%	3.73%

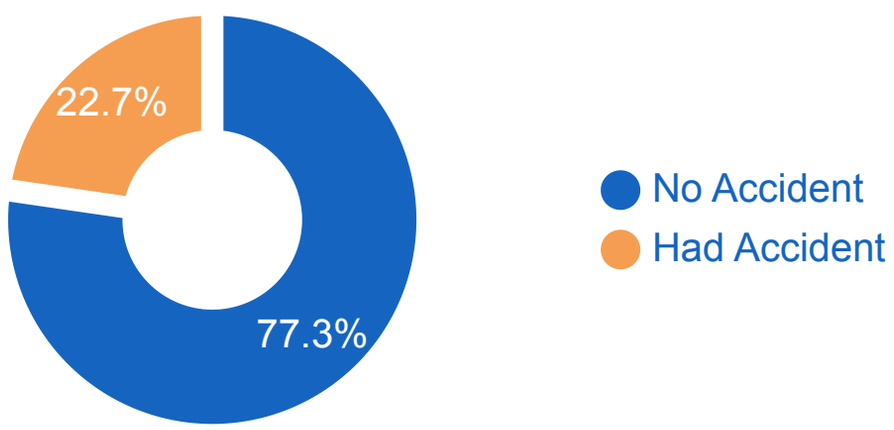
Attrition Rate by Number of Projects



Attrition Rate by tenure



Attrition Rate by Accident Status



Key Workload Insights

1- Employees with only 2 or 7 projects have dramatically higher attrition(66%, 100)

2- Attrition Spikes hard at years 4-5(35-57%), then drops to near zero by year 7.

3- Employees who have had accidents are 3x less likely to quit. It likely reflects benefit access and engagement.

Attrition Prediction for New Employees

Departments

7.0%

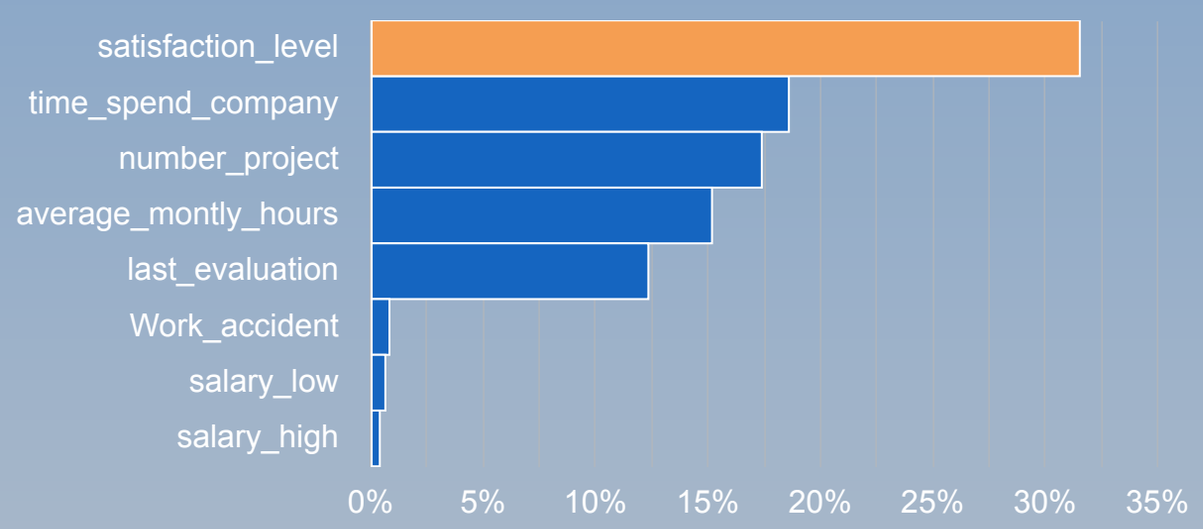
Our Employee At Risk Program

Identifying At-risk Employees, the Attrition model can highlight employees who may be considering leaving, allowing HR to take proactive Steps to address their concerns. Systemic issues in the organization, such as management practices, workload, or lack of career development opportunities.

Supporting Metrics

Departments	satisfaction_level	Total Years	last_evaluation
10	0.5	3.39	0.47

What is Driving Churn



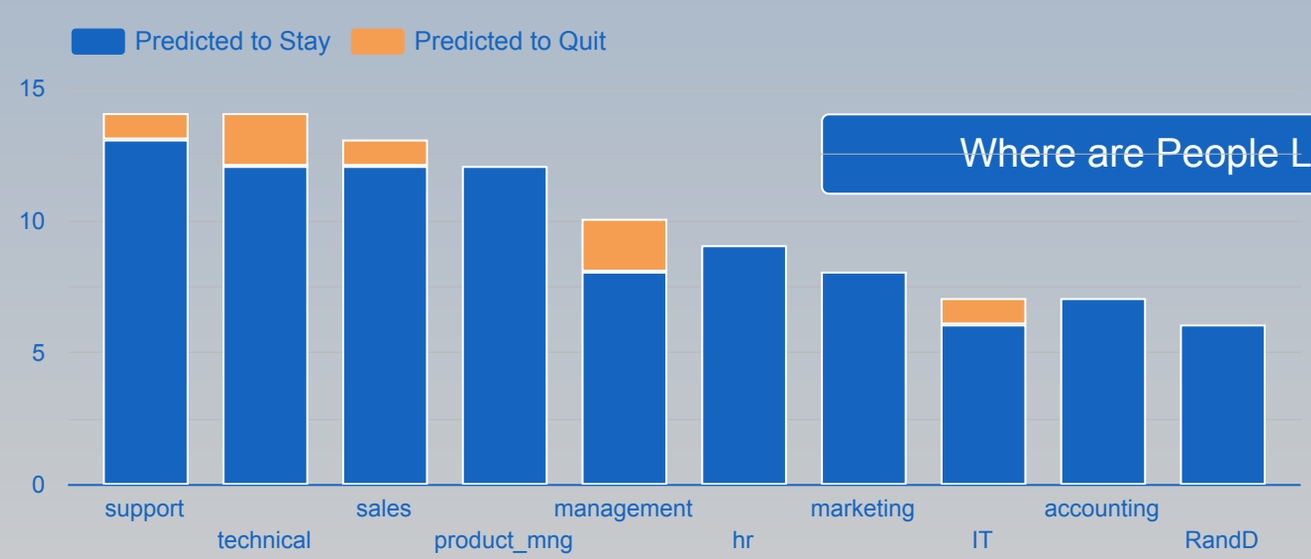
How the Algorithm Works

The Random Forest model found that the most crucial factor for predciting whether employees will stay or leave a company is their job satisfaction. The longer they've been with the company, the more projects they have, the fewer hours they work, and the higher their performance evaluations, the more likely they are to stay.

Employee Sentiment

Satisfied

90%

Predicted to leave


Where are People Leaving